DISTINGUISHED PROFESSOR TITLE TO LARSON

AMES, IOWA—Maurice A. Larson, professor of chemical engineering at Iowa State University has been awarded the Annon Marston Distinguished Professorship in Engineering.

Larson, born in Missouri Valley, was graduated from high school at Ayshire in 1944. He received his B.S. (1951) and Ph.D. (1958) degrees from Iowa State and was a chemical engineer with Dow Corning in Midland, Michigan, 1951-1954. In 1954 he became a teaching assistant at ISU, was named an instructor a year later and has been on the faculty since then. In 1970 he received the Western Electric Fund Award for excellence in teaching. In 1967 he had received ISU's Webber Teaching Award for inspired teaching in chemical engineering, and in 1972, received the Faculty Citation. In 1971-72 Larson was a visiting professor at University College, London, England. He was an AID-NSF science education consultant in India in 1968.
