

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

Don Brandes is a graduate student and professional illustrator. The drawings on pp. 23, 24 and 43 are by him, and are here reproduced with his permission.

John Paul Jones III received his BA and MS in geography from the University of Florida and Florida State University, respectively. He is currently a doctoral student at Ohio State University.

Michael Levasseur is a part-time instructor at Hillsborough Jr. College. She received her masters degree from the University of South Florida. Her special interests are meteorology and climatology.

Craig Miller is a surveyor with the U.S. Forestry Service in Colorado. He wrote his master's thesis at The Florida State University on "Extension of the National Land System to Colonial West Florida: The Evolution and Influence of Colonial Land Policy."

Patrick O'Sullivan is Professor of Geography at The Florida State University. His Ph.D. is from the University of London.

Storm L. Richards received his bachelor's in anthropology and his master's in geography from the University of Florida. He is a doctoral student at UF in Geography and Urban And Regional Planning.

Ronald Schultz is an associate professor in the geography department at Florida Atlantic University. His Ph.D. is from the University of Washington.

D. M. Stowers, Jr. is presently an associate professor of geography at the University of South Florida. He received his doctorate from Duke University in 1961. His special interests include meteorology, climatology, and air pollution studies.

Dana R. Todsén is Director of the Office of Development of the University of Tampa. He received his Master's degree in Medical Geography from the University of South Florida.